FLORIDA, O., Feb. 2, 1886. On Saturday last, at the hour of 2 p. m., death, that messenger that sooner or later overtakes us all, stole in upon us and plucked from our midst a bright little flower, Francis, aged two and one-half years, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sigg. They have the condolence of a sympathizing community in this their hour of sorrow and affliction. We solice ourselves in the belief that "It must be sweet in childhood to give back the spirit to its Maker ere the heart has grown familiar with the paths of sin and sorrow to garner up its bitter fruits."

Neighboring papers gobbled up the "Little Dutchman's" business local last week, in which he gave a very graphic description of the loads of Saur's pills going over the river bridge, causing our people as much anxiety for the safety of the bridge as from the heavy pressure of the ice, the reporters dishing it up as an item conveying the startling news that the Napoleon bridge was in danger of being carried away by the ice! And still there are those who will say that advertisements are not read. Mr. Saur has a standing advertisement and a new local ad. every week, and has had for the past thirteen years that we know of, and we venture the assertion there are but few of his ads. but what he hears from.

Death of D. F. Welsted. Mr. D. F. Welsted, one of the old pioneers of this county, died at his residence in Napoleon on last Saturday evening, after an illness of short duration.

Mr. Welsted moved to Henry county in 1838, and at once took an active part in the interests of the county. He at one time held the office of County Commissioner, and also filled with credit other positions in the gift of the people of the county.

He was an unflinching Democrat, and although of late years taking no active part in politics, he was always interested in party matters and public questions. His funeral took place on Monday afternoon when a large concourse of friends and neighbors paid their last respects to his earthly career.

At his death he was in his 70th year. The stricken family have the sympathies of the community.

Beautiful Colors. Old clothes can be made to look almost as nice and good as new but very little trouble and expense by using the celebrated Diamond Dyes, sold at Saur's Drug and Book store.

These dyes comprise over 30 different shades and colors, and are all warranted to give entire satisfaction, when the directions which accompany every package are followed.

These dyes can also be used in the manufacture of the most beautiful colored inks, which are used in many of our schools. Saur has also a large stock of the regular old-fashioned dyestuffs on hand, which are still used in coloring carpet rags, and which are warranted to give good fast colors.

Dyestuffs are much cheaper than formerly, and it costs but very little now to get dyestuff enough at Saur's Drug store to color 75 or 100 yards of carpet.

Musical and Literary Entertainment. No one should fail to be present at Richard's Hall to-night, to witness one of the best musical and literary entertainments ever given in Napoleon.

Gorgeous Fairy Spectacle. At Toledo, Ohio, the wonderful "Naiad Queens" spectacle, that paragon of gorgeousness and bewildering enchantment, with its living human beings floating through the air on gossamer cloudings; its weaving waters, sinking rocks, sailing boats; its living fairies descending from Heaven in golden chariots; its beautiful maidens rising from the raging waters of an angry sea; its mighty eagles, carrying children on their backs through showers of gold; its startling transformations, majestic and imposing tableaux, and astonishing elaborateness of detail and effect, is to hold the Wheelers Opera House boards at Toledo from Feb. 15th, for one week, and we advise our readers who can do so to arrange their plans so as to see it by all means, as this will be the only chance they may ever enjoy. $40,000.00 have been expended in providing its grand scenery, gorgeous costumes and marvelous effects, making it the grandest thing ever seen on the American stage, all the Opera House scenery will be removed to make room for the three car loads which pertain solely to the "Naiad Queen." 800 performers will take part, besides the 80 men required to run the scenic effects; in all probability excursion rates will be arranged for, over all roads running into Toledo.

Our "Justice" is a little, yes a good deal, off concerning the Bread Fruit Potato scheme. He says, through the Press, that it is another Bohemian Oats scheme. Now, we beg leave to differ with him, as we know exactly how the business is carried on, and presume he knows only what somebody told him concerning the potato transaction.

The business is carried on just as railroads do business, i. e., you can buy stock, but the company does not agree to sell twice as much for you. In fact they do not, never did, and never will sell a pound for anyone; so you see it is far from being connected with the oats scheme.

Florida Squibs. In the I. O. O. G. T. Hall on Friday evening, the 29th ult., the Holgate Amateur Dramatic Company favored us with a selection from their repertoire entitled the Social Glass, a temperance drama. Following is the cast:

Charles Thomley.....U. G. Heacock Dr. Slater.....L. G. Hartman Harold Hadley.....C. B. Cole John Farley.....Dr. J. M. Stout Bob Brittle.....E. N. Todd James Hollis.....J. E. Foss Eva Thomley.....Mrs. Mary Volgt Nettie Nettley.....Miss Anna Myers Mrs. Farley.....Miss Sadie Baer

The hall was well filled and the audience showed their true appreciation by rounds of applause at each curtain. The company were well adapted to their parts. Time and space prevents us giving each in turn the compliment they so richly merit. Come again, we assure you a hearty welcome.

W. E. Decker, Supt. Holgate schools, came over with the Dramatic Company. Will has hosts of friends here and makes himself at home among them.

We think Miss Nettley must have mashed some of our young fellows pretty bad. "Oh, I do like to make folks happy."

LOUPE CITY, Neb., Jan. 28, 1886. ED. NORTHWEST—As I read the items in your paper with a great deal of interest, I thought perhaps I might give your readers some items of interest regarding the crops and weather in this part of Nebraska.

We have had pretty cold weather ever since now, the thermometer ranging from ten to twenty-eight degrees below zero. The hail damaged the crops considerable here. Grain of all kinds is very low in price; corn is 18c per bushel, oats 15c, wheat 50c, hogs $3.25 per cwt., fat cattle, butcher stock, $2.75 per cwt. The hog cholera has been quite bad, some farmers losing as high as 150 head.

There is always plenty of work to do here, and good hands can get plenty of work, wages $1 a day and board; by the month from $16 to $20. The Union Pacific Road is pushing its lines on up the Loup river, and the B. & M. is extending its line on west. This will be of considerable advantage to this part of Nebraska.

A kind old lady tells us that it was the custom in her young days for the young man to kiss his girl every time they crossed a bridge when buggy-riding or sleighing. If this was in vogue now, what a harvest our livery men would have.

The Dr. is not as active as when the writer first knew him, 45 years ago, but very active for a man of his age. His sister, only a few years his junior, is as active as many ladies many years his junior.

For dinner the Doctor's table was loaded with delicacies and substantial, which the Maumee Valley is capable of producing, and his esteemed wife and sister knew well how to prepare. Suffice to say that it was the wish of all present that he may live to enjoy many more birthday anniversaries. Florida, Feb. 1, 1886.

It used to be considered necessary in order to save meat during warm weather, to first put it in a very strong salt brine for six or eight weeks, then smoke it until spring. We have heard of one man who still puts down his meat with rock salt and strong language.

Now all this is a mistake. It has been found that salt toughens lean meat and renders it indigestible, and lean meat is the glory of a ham. At the Pork House we use sugar or the best of syrup, this gives to our hams their delicate color and fine flavor and keeping qualities not to be excelled, and besides you are not compelled to soak each slice in water in order to draw out the surplus salt (and sweetens too) before cooking. Our first lot of hams for this year are now ready, we can recommend them as first-class, as great pains has been taken to make them as near perfect as possible. We even bought new casks to pack them in fearing the old ones had become so saturated with salt from continued use as to affect the meat.

Then we carefully smoked them with hickory wood and now offer them for sale. Try one. "The mince pies of days gone by are scarce and hard to find. The mince meat of commerce needs the addition of raisins, boiled cider, sugar and various other condiments to render it palatable and should never be used just as it is bought and good prices expected." Farm and Fireside, Jan. 15, 1886.

While the above is true of most of the mince meat sold in groceries, it cannot be said of our make. We started out this season determined to make a good mince meat and as an evidence of success we have sold over 50 gallons in our own city. A fresh lot made this week. Try it and you will not bother making a little for a few pies when 35 cents worth of ours will make you five good old-fashioned mince pies.

E. R. COWDRICK. Whisky. Medical pure Rye and Bourbon whisky for medicinal purpose, old Wine, old Holland Gin and fine French Brandy, is recommended well by all. Respectfully, jan28th W. BRAND.
